Out & About

Where to go, what to see, and how to kick up your summer.

ON THE ROAD: SANTA FE, NEW MEXICO

Visiting Santa Fe is always a good idea, but from July 8 to 10, hundreds of artisans from all over the world will come together for the International Folk Art Market—making it a great idea. Shop the handmade jewelry, ceramics, baskets, and beadwork, and watch live demonstrations.

IT'S ON:KOREAN CUISINE

Our food editors are having fun cooking their way through Koreatown (Clarkson Potter), Deuki Hong and Matt Rodbard's new book. It includes tasty dishes like kalbi (marinated short ribs). Try the recipes at home, or leave them to the chefs at one of Hong's top picks.

Heirloom Market BBQ

This casual eatery serves southern barbecue with a Korean kick, like smoked brisket with chile paste.

Soban

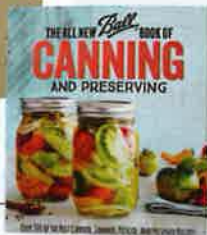

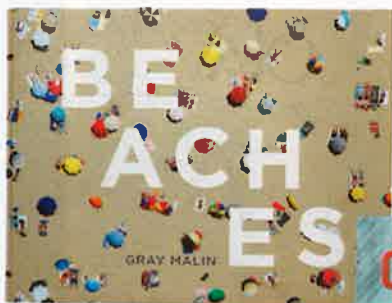

Don't miss the fresh crab marinated in house-made soy sauce, says Hong.

▶ Los Angeles

Kang Ho Dong Baekjeong

At his very own restaurant, Hong suggests the beef-brisket soybean-paste stew.

ON OUR BOOKSHELF

Just as you're wondering what to do with all those tomatoes you got overly excited about, the experts behind Ball canning supplies have released the ultimate guide to making the most of your produce, The All New Ball Book of Canning and Preserving (Oxmoor House). Recipes are organized for quick reference by technique, including pickling, fermenting, and smoking. Another book that savors summer, Gray Malin's Beaches (Abrams), features stunning aerial photography of coastlines around the world—it's perfect for a hostess gift. Need one more reason to get outside? Pick up See America (Chronicle), by the Creative Action Network. The book celebrates the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service and is filled with inspiring illustrations of 75 parks you'll want to visit.
